Save Time and Money With a Technology Consultant

Firefly is your go-to technology consultant and unbiased advocate – we'll find the right solutions to grow your business within your budget.

Working with an experienced technology consultant like Firefly can help increase your efficiency and maximize your budget, but where do those cost savings come from? Technology consultants save your business time and money by identifying these opportunities for optimization:

Overpaying for services - A technology consultant will examine your current IT infrastructure to determine if you're paying for features you don't use – or overpaying for more service than you actually need.

Antiquated technology - If your systems are still running on old technology, companies may charge extra to compensate for the users who have upgraded to the newer, cheaper solution.

Lack of mobility - Modern businesses need technology that lets employees work from anywhere, so if you're not using mobility solutions, you're missing out on productivity and – ultimately – cost savings.

Potential vulnerabilities - Cyber attacks are expensive and can be difficult to recover from; with cyber crime on the rise, identifying vulnerabilities in your technology is more important than ever.

Poor-fit solutions - Finding the right technology solution to replace outdated or expensive services can be time-consuming and lose you money in the long run. A good technology consultant can find the solutions that are the right fit for your business.

Optimize Your Technology With Custom Solutions From Firefly

At Firefly, we understand how challenging it is to find the best-fit solutions for the problems faced by today's work-from-anywhere workforce. Making the wrong technology decisions can lead to long-term consequences that stagnate your business. That's why we've committed ourselves to helping our clients grow as their go-to technology consultant.

Our services are built on five pillars – mobility, cloud, UCaaS, security, and connectivity/SD-WAN – and are designed to help empower businesses through technology. We'll identify your unique problem areas and provide custom solutions that help you save on costs and propel your business forward.
